TIK-aka
CHOKEF, LOLLIES, SPEED, ICE, STRAWS is Powerfully Addictive

THINK ABOUT IT
Teenagers may be involved with illegal drugs in various ways. Teenagers often experiment with drugs, but don't realize the dangers. Teenagers often feel invincible and don't believe that taking drugs can harm them. This is a false belief, but we can help you break it. Early intervention, speaking to counselors, teachers, community leaders, religious leaders, friends and family.

Parents can help through early education about drugs, good role modeling and recognizing the warning signs at an early stage. If there is any sign of pain should seek medical advice for treatment as soon as possible. By combining the appropriate therapies and organizations, parents are encouraged to be honest and open with their children about warning signs of drugs and how drugs can destroy lives.

TALK ABOUT IT
Phase 1: Detox
This phase includes severe, feeling lonely, fear of getting pregnant, depression, difficulty sleeping, and loss of appetite. Treatment involves an increasing proportion of oral medication and often lasts a week. TIK:... TIK
Phase 2: Medication
This is a period during which the brain recovers from the changes resulting from TIK. Recovery will be gradual, and the patient may feel depressed, low, tired and struggle to cope with life without TIK. Most TIK addicts can successfully be treated at home or in their communities with the help of families, government, institutions and organizations listed below.
